This special luncheon workshop, conducted by the Griffith Insurance Education Foundation for the NCOIL Institute for Insurance Policy, is designed to help policymakers understand why states have been so active in 2010 addressing concerns of state public pension systems and their long term viability.

An Education Workshop for NCOIL 2010 Annual Meeting Attendees

State Budget Crises and Pension Security: What Can States Afford?

Thursday, November 18th

12:00 P.M. – 1:15 P.M.

Lunch will be provided

Defined benefit plans are straining state budgets and the holes are becoming bigger every year. Pension funding in some states will be required by law to consume 25% to 30% or more of tax revenues on the current path. Recently states have begun to test the legal boundary to deal with the crisis. This session will address what alternatives might assure retirement and healthcare security without worsening unfunded state liabilities.

Key questions discussed from an academic perspective will include: should states rein in lifetime income incentives for public employees, what does the administration envision, how it might impact states, and can private insurers help?

Please join us for lunch as Dr. Rob B. Drennan, Chairman of the Department of Risk, Insurance and Healthcare Management at the Fox School of Business and Management at Temple University, conducts this special session.
